AERIAL MAIL PILOTS STRIKE TO COMPEL REINSTATEMENT OF TWO DISCHARGED AVIATORS

o Flyers Appear to Take Out Machines at New York or at Cleveland.

TRIKERS HOLD MEETING

Cleveland Aviators Decline Not to Start in New York. Discharged Pilots Refused to Fly on Account of Fog.

NEW YORK, July 25.—A strike of aerial mail pilots began today, no flyers appearing to take out the planes with Chicago mail due to start at Bellefonte, Pa., at 5 A. M. The strike, the first of its kind in the country, follows the refusal of the Post Office Department to reinstate two pilots discharged for refusing to take out planes Tuesday on account of the fog.

Post Office officials at Belmont park, L. I., the landing field for mail planes, stated that they had received instructions to give out no information concerning the aviators' action.

CLEVELAND, O., July 25.—No aviator reported at Woodland Hills field at 8:30 o'clock this morning to take out the airplanes with New York mails, scheduled to leave here at 7:45 A. M. for Bellefonte, Pa.

It is understood that at a meeting of the aviators here last night it was decided not to report for duty this morning if the New York aviators did not report.

The airplane carrying mail for Chicago scheduled to leave here at 9:30 A. M., was delayed nearly an hour in leaving, getting away at 10:20 A. M.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—While the Washington-New York air mail plane is on time today, despite the strike of pilots, the postoffice department has no official report at noon to show that any others were in flight. A report from Chicago, however, said the machines in the western division were "leaving on time."

VILL NOT PRESENT TREATY

President Will Wait Until He Returns From Trip.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—President Wilson does not now plan to present the defensive treaty with France to the Senate until after he returns from his tour of the country. This statement was made today at the White House.

When the President presents the treaty he will accompany it with an explanatory address to the Senate. A statement was made today at the White House with regard to charges that the President yesterday that the treaty by not presenting it simultaneously with the treaty of Versailles.

The President was in his study early today and among the many matters before him was the preparation of information and documents relating to the peace negotiations requested by the Senate.

Indications today were that the President would start on his westward trip about August 10, although it was made clear this was purely tentative and that the exact dates would depend upon developments in Washington during the next fortnight.

DRILLS FOR BOOZE

Baltimore Men Bores Through Car Floor to Tap Barrel.

BALTIMORE, July 25.—A sealed and locked car has no terrors, at least not for one enterprising Baltimorean who was tipped off that said car contained 80 barrels of high-proof liquor with millions of kicks. It required a moment for the fortunately informed one to produce a bit and make an immediate attack upon the floor of the car by boring through and puncturing the bottom of a barrel filled with the rare fluid.

The energetic one, who had been tortured for months with nightmares of the prohibition enforcement, filled receptacles with more than 40 gallons of rye and probably only stopped his labor of love when his game was discovered by an employee of the Pennsylvania railroad. The bored hole was neatly plugged with a piece of broomstick. The liquor was the property of the Stewart Distilling company and was in a car on a siding in Highlandtown.

Too Much For Printers.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Speaker Cullitt today agreed to have certain portions of the Denmore report on the Mooney case expurgated to meet objections raised by the government printing office officials to language in the document. Officials at the printing office had notified the Speaker that the report as submitted to the House yesterday "fairly bristled" with invectives and accounts of immoral happenings.

CROATIANS IN REVOLT FORMING A NEW REPUBLIC

Soldiers at Head of Movement Seeking a Separation From Serbia.

ARMY IN DISSOLUTION

Men Leave Their Units, Officers and Subalterns Tear Off Insignia and Disorder Prevails; Thirty Killed When an Entire Garrison Revolts.

By Associated Press.

PARIS, July 25.—Dispatches from Agram and Graz report a serious military revolt in Croatia.

The revolt is taking the form of a movement for a separation from Serbia and the formation of a republic.

Troops are leaving their units, officers and subalterns are tearing off their insignia and the army is in a state of dissolution, the advices say.

The railroads and telegraphs are tied up from Caskortz southwest. The Serbians are trying to suppress the revolution by the use of troops, both Serbians and Croats. The Agram advices do not record any disorder in that city. They state, however, that the independent Croatian republic, according to information reaching Agram, has been proclaimed by soldiers in several of the Croatian towns.

GRATZ, Syria via Basel, July 25.—Violent combats occurred Tuesday evening at Marburg, 36 miles southeast of Gratz, where a large part of the garrison revolted as a result of dissatisfaction over demobilization. Thirty persons were killed and many wounded.

The movement started at a Social meeting where speakers advocated the formation of a republic of Jugoslavia. Slovenian and Croatian soldiers, who were present in considerable numbers, cried "Let us separate from Serbia."

PARIS, July 25.—The Croatian troops have proclaimed an independent Croatian republic, according to a dispatch from Agram, the capital. At several points they are fraternizing with Hungarians.

Rumors of mutiny and other trouble in Jugoslavia were denied officially at Ljubach (in Jugoslavia), according to a dispatch received today from Ljubach by way of Vienna and Basel. The dispatch said that it was stated officially that order and tranquility prevailed throughout the country.

SIXTY GERMANS ARE ARRESTED FOR TRYING TO DEFRAUD THE U. S.

Plot to Eliminate Competition at Auction Sale of Supplies Discovered.

By Associated Press.

COBLENZ, July 25.—Sixty Germans from Cologne, Berlin and other cities were arrested here tonight by Army intelligence officers in connection with an alleged plot to defraud the government of millions of marks by eliminating competition at auction of army supplies.

Intelligence officers said the alleged fraud was accomplished through an organization, most of whose members now are under arrest, that kept competitors from bidding at auctions where salvaged army material was sold.

On some days the auction sales amounted to 15,000,000 and 20,000,000 marks, most of the material going to men alleged to belong to the organization in question. American soldiers in plain clothes sent into the crowd at auction sales, according to the officers, repeatedly were offered large sums of money not to bid against members of the organization.

At night, it was said, members of the organization held "an equalization meeting" and the material bought during the day was auctioned to the members. Material sold to members of the organization, wherever possible, will not be delivered.

MAY PAY COLOMBIA

Twenty-Five Million For Panama Canal Before Senate.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Under present plans of Republican leaders the peace treaty will be set aside temporarily for consideration of the treaty between the United States and Colombia, proposing payment to the latter of $25,000,000 for damages arising from American acquisition of the Panama canal.

Chairman Lodge of the Senate Foreign Relations committee said today the Colombian treaty would be taken up by the committee next week with plans for its immediate ratification by the Senate. Action on the treaty has been urged by the State Department.

YIELD OF FARM CROPS, WITH THE EXCEPTION OF GARDENS, IS ONLY FAIR, SAYS FARM AGENT

Wheat Disappointing; Oats Suffer a New Blight; Corn Growing Fast.

While the total crop yield of grains raised on the farms of Fayette county will be large this year, on account of the increased acreage planted, the yield per acre will be only fair, insofar as it relates to wheat and other grains.

This is the judgment of Farm Agent Sprinkle who was in the city this morning to be present at the opening of the curb market and later to take a trip into the mountain townships in connection with his work among the farmers.

"The wheat yield," said Agent Sprinkle, "is disappointing. The best I have heard of is about 18 bushels per acre. Generally it is very much under the average and is due to the fact that the grain is small and shriveled, a condition due to the unseasonably cold weather prevailing at the time the grains were being formed.

Oats will yield somewhat better, but many fields have been afflicted with a disease the exact nature of which has not been determined. I have collected samples of grain affected by it and sent them to State College for study by the experts there but they have not yet reached a conclusion as to what it is. In appearance the new blight resembles rust, but differs from it in other respects.

"Aside from berries, of which there is an abundance, there is no fruit to speak of, the late frosts having virtually destroyed the prospects for a crop. While there are fewer gardens than last and the preceding year those planted are in a very promising condition and will produce abundantly.

"Hay, especially timothy, will harvest a good crop. Early clover was unsatisfactory.

The recent rains and warm nights have resulted in a wonderful growth in corn. If favorable weather continues during the coming season there should be a very large crop and a high average yield per acre.

"With improvement in methods, more attention paid to crop rotation, preparation of soil and other essentials; with better markets, better prices, and unlimited demand for every thing farmers of Fayette can produce in the diversified lines of farming and livestock raising, they are coming into their own. The only farmers who are not profiting by existing conditions are those who refuse to follow the example of their more progressive neighbors and farm according to approved modern methods.

CLAIM ALIBI

For One of the Suspects Held for the Murder of Miss Emma Austrow.

Attorneys for John Ray, the 17-year-old boy who, with James Crawford, a feeble-minded farm hand, is being held in the Greensburg Jail charged with the murder of Miss Emma Austrow, a Derry township school teacher, will make demand for a habeas corpus hearing and admission of their client to bail. The attorneys claim they can establish an alibi for their client.

Crawford, who is alleged to have made the confession to the state police telling how he and Ray murdered the teacher and hid the body in a vault at the abandoned farm house on the Ardary farm, now reverts to his first story that the school teacher was induced to get into an automobile at her school house shortly after the close of her school day, April 28, and he now repudiates his alleged confession.

COST $92,244.61 TO RUN DUNBAR TOWNSHIP SCHOOLS DURING 1918

Total of $53,844 Paid Out to Army of Teachers; $1,067 for Transportation of Pupils.

A total of $92,244.61 was required to pay the army of teachers employed by Dunbar township last term, according to the report of the auditors, J. P. McGinnis and J. L. Keffer, filed with the governing body yesterday.

Other items of expenditure were: $2,995.22 for alterations in old school buildings; $2,435.57 for supplies; $2,239.54 for fuel; $4,884.13 for janitors and janitors' supplies; $2,453.83 for repairs of buildings and up-keeping of grounds; $10,700 for redemption of all short time loans which were paid in full, together with interest on same; $1,067.38 for transportation of pupils. This item includes not only the transportation of high school pupils, but also full transportation of those pupils in the grades who live more than one mile from the schools they attend. There are numerous other items running the total expenditure for the school year ending July 7, 1919, up to $92,244.61. The total receipts for the general fund for the year were $93,444.80.

Among the receipts are the following: State appropriation, $13,064.87, of which the grades got $12,532.37 and the high school $532. An important item is tuition from districts adjoining and having no convenient schools, and others having no high school. Total tuition paid for the year was $4,833.49, of which sum $3,522.19 was for the grades, and $1,311 for the high school. The last item does not include $836 due from Vanderbilt borough to the high school which, when paid, will increase the high school tuition to $2,147. J. B. Senor, tax collector, paid to the township for the general fund $75,273.78, of which sum $6,273.78 settled the 1917 duplicate in full, and $69,000 was paid on the 1918 duplicate. This does not include $12,000 paid by him on 1918 duplicates and apportioned to the sinking fund. The total duplicate for 1918 was $90,634.89. The amount paid on this is $81,000, leaving the small balance of but $9,634.89, from which all exonerations are to be made. The tax collector is making a good record.

PRESIDENT EXPLAINS WHY AMERICAN ARMY WAS SENT TO SIBERIA

Tell Senate Force Is to Protect Railroads and Give Relief to Russian People.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—President Wilson today advised the Senate that the American military expedition in Siberia was there primarily to protect and maintain operations of the Siberian railroads and indicated that the expedition would remain as long as such protection was necessary.

Another purpose of the expedition as outlined by the President was to give relief to the Russian people in Siberia by supplying food, clothing and other supplies. Mr. Wilson said there was no intention of interfering with Russian sovereignty.

The retention of American troops to protect American railroad forces under John P. Stevens, the President's latest stated, is a "vital element." By agreement with Japan, the President stated, the American troops are to remain there as long as the railroad expedition is engaged in maintaining operations.

PARIS, July 25.—Twenty thousand Russians, many of them barefooted and without rifles and unsupported by heavy artillery composed the northern Russian army whose front extends from the Finnish coast to Pskov and which is driving back towards Petrograd a Bolshevik army four times as large, according to reports received here from offices of the American Relief Administration on the scene.

Buttermilk Said to Contain More Alcohol Than the Law Allows.

Unscrupulous investigators of a more than normally suspicious nature are collecting samples of buttermilk in the Pittsburgh district to see if bossy's product contains more alcohol than the law allows.

ADDITIONAL CHARGES AGAINST COMPTROLLER MADE BY ATTY. JONES

Declares First National Bank Building Need Not Have Been Sold at Sacrifice.

Attorney A. E. Jones' charges against Comptroller of the Currency yesterday at a hearing before the Senate Banking and Currency committee which is hearing testimony on a protest against Mr. Williams' appointment were the most sensational of any yet made. Representing the stockholders of the defunct First National Bank of Uniontown, Mr. Jones in effect declared that the comptroller's moves closed the bank.

Mr. Williams denied Attorney Jones' charges that he had juggled 10,000 shares of coal mining stock, deposited with him as securing for Thompson's loan, for his own or his friends' benefit.

"That statement is an infamous slander," said Mr. Williams when he took the stand some time later. "Mr. Chairman," he continued, "I wish, if I may, to have the opportunity of reading the testimony of this witness, when I shall make more detailed reply to his unwarranted and grossly false statements concerning me."

But Mr. Jones adhered to his position and would not recede. "Do you mean to charge," asked Senator Newberry, "that Mr. Williams had a personal interest in using the stock as he used them?"

"I certainly do," said Mr. Jones. "In my opinion he wanted to depress the price of these shares either for his own profit or in the interest of some of his friends."

The shares referred to were 7,000 shares in the Whetzel Coal & Coke company and 3,000 shares in the Liberty Coal company. They were deposited by Mr. Thompson with the Comptroller of Currency, it developed, to secure loans made by the bank to Mr. Thompson. There was an oral agreement which later was reduced to writing which provided how the shares were to be disposed of.

Mr. Williams said he had refused to give Attorney Jones information concerning this agreement because the matter was in the hands of the court and Jones represented people holding not more than 75 shares of the stock.

The allegation made by Mr. Jones was not that the affairs of the bank were not properly administered when the banking house was sold for $700,000, which he regards as a great sacrifice, and nothing was done with the stock. He claims that if the comptroller had sold the stock which Mr. Thompson had on deposit the proceeds would have obliterated the necessity of selling the bank building and the bank could have reopened for business.

Another charge made by Mr. Jones was that the comptroller had advised other national banks not to lead up too heavily on Thompson notes, and had instructed bank examiners to spread that word around. He cited the case of E. S. Hackney, one of the officials of the bank, who, he said, had been induced to withdraw a $250,000 deposit for his own protection.

In reply to this charge Mr. Williams said Hackney had deposited $250,000 in the bank and received a deposit slip for the amount, but really had made the deposit as a loan at 6 per cent. The bank examiners contended that this loan should be included in the report of the bank. As to the charge that he and the national bank examiners had advised other bankers not to lead too heavily on Thompson paper, Mr. Williams said: "Just before the failure of the bank, which Mr. Thompson dominated, he was endeavoring to borrow $500,000, and was willing to pay large discounts for the loans. Mr. Jones admits that Thompson was even borrowing from every man, woman and child in Uniontown. He was trying to borrow in various sections of the country. It is inconceivable that a national bank examiner, finding such conditions, should not give warning to other banks to protect them. It was our duty to do so."

EIGHT FARMERS APPEAR AT FIRST 1919 CURB MARKET

Brisk Trade in Garden Products Marks Opening and Outlook is Good.

FAIR TURNOUT OF BUYERS

City People Evidence Willingness to Patronize Market if Prices Are Right; Farm Agent Sprinkle Is Working to Make it a Success.

The first 1919 curb market got a good start this morning. Eight farmers in automobiles and wagons drove to the grounds in the rear of the Methodist Episcopal church and placed fresh green goods, just from their gardens, on sale. There was a fairly good turnout of city buyers.

The start this year was much more auspicious than last. In 1918 the farmers did not meet the demands of the buyers on the first day. This time, however, there was a larger supply of goods. It now remains up to the citizens of Connellsville whether the market will be a success or not.

On sale were beets, cabbage, onions, apples, berries, corn and various other garden products. Many big bushels were carried away from the grounds but there was still sufficient on hand to supply more people.

The next market day, Tuesday, will likely see a larger crowd, both of farmers and buyers. The history of the market last year showed steady growth as the weeks passed. With a heavier demand this season for fresh green goods and as the market is late in starting, it should expand even faster than before.

The tables used in the previous season are still available and had been set up for use this morning. For the remainder of the season the market will be held two days each week, Tuesdays and Fridays, opening promptly at 8 o'clock. Farmers will be required to remove all refuse matter collecting in their stalls in order that the ground will not have to be cleaned by city employees in readiness for the succeeding market day.

Prices ruling at the market this morning were generally under those asked at the stores handling green goods and also lower than those charged by gardeners who have been making house to house deliveries in the city.

It is the desire of Farm Agent Sprinkle, who was on hand at the opening, and also the willingness of the gardeners, that this price rule be adhered to throughout the market season, otherwise there will be little inducement for housewives of the city to patronize the market, pay cash and then carry their purchases home.

New Edifice May Replace Summit Union Chapel.

At a meeting of a number of members of congregations which meet in the Summit Union Chapel, in Dunbar township, last night plans to remodel the chapel or erect a new church were discussed. The Summit chapel was originally a store built while work was in progress on Henderson's cut. It was given over to the use of various churches of the township in 1880 by Col. J. J. Barnhart. Colonel Barnhart is one of the leaders in the movement toward a new church.

RUNS INTO HILL

Ford Car Gets Beyond Control When Rear End "Goes Up."

A traveling salesman from Greensburg had a narrow escape from injury last night when his Ford truck got out of his control while coming down the West Side hill and dashing over the curb ran into a big ash pile near the coal tipple at the first bend. The rear end of the automobile "went up," the gears becoming useless. Brakes are of no use on a Ford when this occurs and the car could not be stopped.

It gained considerable momentum and the driver ran it into the hillside. He escaped injury himself but a spring on the car was broken.

GUARDING PRISONERS OF WAR NO SOFT JOB, SAYS LEISENBERG MAN

J. R. Sweeney Ready to Return to the U. S. Any Time They Get Ready to Send Him.

Writing from Romoratin, France, to J. A. Shutsy of Leisenberg, J. R. Sweeney, of Prisoner of War Escort Company No. 240, says he's feeling fine but is S. O. L. again; so far as getting home is concerned.

"We finished up at Nievers," he writes, "and I thought sure I was going home, but they sent us and the prisoners to a big aeroplane salvage dump and to see the junk that is piled up here is enough to disgust anyone. The dope is that we will be here only a few weeks, but the Army is full of that bull."

"We are four miles out of town and they say the camp is 10 miles square, but I haven't had enough ambition yet to go out and look it over. I am writing this in the kitchen and there are five Germans building up the stove and we are talking about going home. I believe they've forgotten all about us. Even the labor battalions are leaving now but we have to stay. Anyone of the boys can tell you what guard duty for seven months in France is. If anyone says I have not done my bit, he and I are going to fall out. But the best way, Jack, is to take everything with a smile. Our day will come some time and believe me I am going to take one of my short furloings—about a year."

"We are with another prisoner of war escort company now. We have about 300 prisoners and about two miles from here there are 2,000 Hunns packing up airplanes to ship back to the United States. There are 5,000 big trucks here, so you can imagine what kind of a camp it is."

"The Hunns are talking about the war now. They say if the Americans did not send supplies over here, they would have ended it in 1916."

The writer wonders why some of the Home Guards don't come over to France and guard prisoners a while so the escort companies can come home.

"Give my regards to all the boys," he concludes, "and also to that nice man Burkett. I will ring off for this time, hoping I can put my feet under your tables soon."

John R. Sweeney left Connelville for Camp Lee, May 29th, 1918. He trained there for seven weeks and was then sent overseas. He was a pal of Louis J. Shutsy of Leisenberg at Camp Lee though they did not sail together, being separated two weeks after reaching camp. Louis J. Shutsy gave his life for his country in the Meuse-Argonne drive, September 28, 1918.

MOSQUITO BILL

And It's in Mine Inspector's Salary Voted by Governor Sproul.

Among the bills vetoed by Governor Sproul yesterday was one introduced by Senator Crow which authorized the commissioner of health to determine upon and order the eradication of mosquitoes and mosquito breeding places in any county in the state. The bill also provided for the payment of the costs by municipalities and by the owner of the properties benefited. One-third of the cost was to have been borne by the state.

The governor also disapproved the Powell bill to increase mine inspectors' salaries from $3,500 to $4,000 a year, because he thought the present salary a liberal one and not out of proportion to the responsibility and work involved.

The fact that the savings of the people paid so large a part of the war debt shows that it is the savings that represent the reserve power of this country. It is the savings, too, that represent your reserve financial power. Save and have a strong reserve ready to come to your aid in any emergency. RANKS OF FAYETTE COUNTY VETERANS SLOWLY THINNING

At Least 26 Passed Away During the Last Year; Less Than 350 in County.

At least 26 members of the Fayette County Veterans' association, their average age being 82 years, died during the past year, according to the report of W. T. Kennedy of Uniontown, president of the association. Of approximately 2,000 men of fighting age who went into the Union Armies from Fayette county during the Civil War, less than 350 survive. During the year Nathan Morgan, 32 years old, was the oldest veteran to die. G. W. Kelley of Uniontown was the youngest. Appropriate memorial services will be held in Uniontown on August 28. On account of the influenza epidemic the meeting was not held last year.

The veterans from this part of the county who died during the year were: Stewart Durbin, 78 years, of South Connelville; Company H, 142 Pennsylvania Infantry; June 6, 1919.

Henry Kurtz, 77 years old, of Connelville; Company H, 142 Pennsylvania Infantry; December 1, 1918.

Evans Rush, 80 years old, of Scotland; Company H, 85th Pennsylvania Infantry; January 21th, 1919.

William Black, 73 years old, of Dunbar; Company B, 32 Pennsylvania Cavalry; October 27th, 1918.

P. M. Cunningham, 82 years old, of Ohioville; Company H, First West Virginia Cavalry; May 11, 1919.

The following additional names of veterans who died during the year in Connelville vicinity, it is believed, are not recorded at Uniontown: Michael Firestone, Snyderstown, of Company C, 112 Regiment, died July 8, 1919.

Joseph Marshall, 75 years, Broad Ford, Company F, 11th Pennsylvania Reserves Infantry.

Lindley Newcomer, Connelville, Company L, Seventh Pennsylvania Cavalry; died March 15, 1918.

William Stafford, Connelville, Company D, 155 Volunteers, died June 23, 1919.

Aaron T. Haney, Uniontown township, Company C, 15th Regulars, West Virginia Infantry, died in 1919.

PAINFUL APPRECIATION.

"What shall we enact tonight?" asked Rantington Roarer, the eminent tragedian.

"How about 'Hamlet'?" said his leading actor.

"No. During our last performance of 'Hamlet' the audience of four not only showed keen delight in seeing the members of my company die in the general slaughter which concludes that celebrated drama, but they acted as if they hoped we'd stay dead."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A Diplomatic Illness.

"I'm afraid you were not as sick as you allowed us and perhaps yourself to think," said the patient mother.

"But," answered young son, "I may be that I acted for the best. I didn't know my lesson as well as I ought to and I didn't want to worry the teacher."

Don't Poison Baby.

Forty years ago almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. Those drugs will produce sleep, and a few drops too many will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without your or your physician's knowledge of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, it is the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"ONE OF THE FINEST"—Tom Moore's new Goldwyn picture is an interesting attraction today and tomorrow. Not only does it afford a number of startling surprises in the way of startling complications and unexpected thrills, but it shows the likable star in a decidedly new guise. He is Larry Hayes, a mounted policeman, monarch of all he surveys in the fashionable park comprising the heat. He makes his first mistake in the performance of his duty when he overtakes a speeding limousine and reminds its beautiful occupant, Frances Hudson, that her chauffeur is exceeding the speed limit. The society girl resents his remark and is angered by his firm, though laughing rejoinder to her reply. So she sets about to have her father cause Larry Hayes' dismissal. Instead of this, however, he is reduced to the rank of plain clothes man—but not before Frances Hudson has been saved by him when her life is in peril. Peevishly she resents his timely interference and the policeman only laughs the more. Assigned to guard her sister's wedding presents, Larry again meets the girl he can't forget and she proves that she hasn't forgotten him either. From this moment surprises begin to happen. The star's superb horsemanship in the park scenes contrasts splendidly with the frolics shared with the child, who divides honors with him throughout the play, and the brilliant settings and environment of high society only make the simplicity of the policeman-hero's home life all the more appealing. A selected comedy is also being shown.

THE SOISSON.

"THE MAN HUNTER"—With William Farnum, the celebrated actor, as the star is being shown today. The story is different from anything Mr. Farnum has heretofore done. It is a real melodramatic thriller and Mr. Farnum carries the action along at a speed that is quite breath-taking. The scenes are laid in London, in New York at sea and on the desert island. There is not only variety, but the scenic effects in each place are most striking and picturesque. Those who know the old slum district in London will appreciate the scenes there. The story begins in London and ends in New York. In the beginning Mr. Farnum is a wealthy man. He loses his money through a tricky friend. He goes down into the social depths full of bitterness and longing for revenge. He lives in the cheapest sort of places and even turns longshoreman, pushing freight on a pier in New York. But the once worthless stock finally makes him very wealthy, and he not only gets his revenge but wins the girl whom a false friend sought to marry. The story is intensely human and is relieved here and there by genuine good humor. There are two reasons for William Farnum's screen popularity who never motion pictures are shown. In the first place, he is a remarkable actor; in the second place, his pictures not only are excellent ones, but they are always clean and wholesome. A very select cast, including Louise Lovely as the leading lady, Charles Carey as the "heavy," supports Mr. Farnum. A selected comedy is also being shown.

Lazy Life During Hot Months Causes Lazy Liver

AT no other time is the girl so constant a companion of her mother as when she is emerging into womanhood. There are so many questions to ask; so much she needs to know.

And school is over. Here is now a lazy, inactive, careless life. No wonder she is not always as lively and as well as she should be at her age. Let the mother inquire if the bowels are functioning properly, for there lies the basis of good and poor health.

It will usually be found that a laxative is needed, and none will give safer and quicker relief than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin which is just a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. Taken tonight, it acts freely and pleasantly in the morning. The food is again clear, the body light. There is renewed interest in life.

A dose of Syrup Pepsin now and then is almost a necessity for everyone in hot weather. A bottle can be bought at any drug store for 50c and $1. the latter being the family size, or a free trial bottle can be had by sending your address to Dr. W. E. Caldwell, 490 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

The New Motor Vehicle Law

(So many changes have been made in the motor laws of Pennsylvania by the motor vehicle act, approved June 20, 1919, that few motorists are aware of more than a few. A digest of the act's provisions will be published in The Courier in installments, one each day. Motorists would do well to preserve the series for future reference.)

SPEED—Thirty miles per hour is the maximum speed limit but reckless driving is prohibited, or exceeding a speed that is reasonable and proper in view of surrounding conditions.

Where signs reading "15-mile speed limit" are erected, such a rate of speed shall not be exceeded for a distance of one-eighth of a mile beyond such sign. (This eliminates the old "Danger—Run Slow" sign.)

The signs must be erected by the proper authorities on the right side of the road, facing the traffic to be controlled, the lettering to be five inches high. Such signs may be legally erected at dangerous or built-up sections or at school houses, churches and public playgrounds.

SPEED OF COMMERCIAL VEHICLES—Maximum speed for commercial vehicles: Chassis weight less than 4,500 pounds, 20 miles an hour; 4,500 to 6,000 pounds, 18 miles an hour; 6,000 to 8,000 pounds, 15 miles an hour; 8,000 to 10,000 pounds, 12 miles an hour.

LIGHTS—Every motor vehicle, whether standing or in motion, must from one hour after sunset until one hour before sunrise and whenever it is impossible to see clearly for 200 feet in front, display two lights in front, visible for 200 feet, and a red light on the rear, and the rear number plate must be illuminated.

Motorcycles must display a red light in the rear and must illuminate number plate, but must display only one light in front, provided no side car is attached.

The front lights must be approximately of equal power. No red light can be used on the front of any motor vehicle. The use of electric bulbs of more than 32-candle-power is prohibited. No brilliant light shall be used on the front of any vehicle standing on the left side of the highway.

When in motion, the front lights shall illuminate the roadway for 200 feet, unless the highway is sufficiently lighted to clearly reveal persons and vehicles at that distance. The front lights shall also illuminate the road for five feet to the right of the vehicle at a point 20 feet in front of the lamps.

Every light of more than four-candle-power, if equipped with a reflector, shall be so diffused or deflected that no dazzling rays of light at a point 75 feet in front of the lamps shall rise more than 42 inches above the level surface on which the vehicle stands.

It is not equipped with a permanent deflecting device, a dimming device must be applied and must be used when approaching any other vehicle so that the lights shall not dazzle or blind the driver or operator thereof.

MUST KEEP THE SCHOOLS GOING.

If the closing of the schools in those districts of the county where a shortage of teachers exists can be prevented only through the employment of married women, in that case, no school board should hesitate to rescind any rule now in force against such employment. It is the duty of school boards to make all necessary provisions for such an administration of the schools of their districts that every child eligible for admission shall have the privilege to close a school because an unmarried woman teacher cannot be procured, when it can be continued by employing a married teacher, is an evasion of duty as well as a short-sighted policy. Such action will deprive a certain number of children of the privilege the law accords to all or,
in some cases, will throw an extra burden upon an adjoining district if such children attend the nearest neighboring school, which is also imposing a hardship upon the children through compelling them to go a much greater distance to and from school.

Our public schools are for the first and foremost for the benefit of the children of school age. They must be administered according to certain rules, but the law does not require that such rules shall be so inflexible they cannot be amended to meet unusual conditions, such as securing married women teachers if the exigencies demand this to be done. While economy in administration is always to be expected, practice of it does not contemplate money being saved at the expense of the children seeking an education.

The rule of some school boards to refuse employment to married women as teachers has never had a very substantial reason for its adoption. True, the home duties of many women are such as will prevent them taking up teaching except at a decided disadvantage to themselves and possibly also to the efficiency of their work in the school room. But this condition does not prevail in all cases. There are many married women, who formerly were teachers, and excellent teachers, too, who are now positioned to resume that work. Whoever such can be found school boards in need of teachers should regard it as most fortunate to secure their services, rather than deprive the humblest school child in any district of school facilities.

INDIVIDUAL TASTES AND HIGH PRICES.

In the analysis most people make of the reasons for the high cost of living, few, if any, take themselves into account as a factor in the situation. Stated differently, they overlook the fact that by yielding to their own tastes or desires, or fancied necessities, they, in common with other people like them, have been, and still are, contributing to the causes which make living costlier for everybody.

Unconsciously, but none the less certainly, most people have been making living more expensive because they have been spending more money in living. In other words, their tastes have demanded more and better things than formerly. The development has been general rather than local or sectional and most pronounced among those classes of people who, a few years ago, would have regarded an equivalent scale of expenditure as gross extravagance.

To meet this growing demand for higher priced necessities and more luxuries, which have entered into our complex existence, purveyors of these articles have been quick to cater to the changing tastes of buyers by providing things that cost more money. In consequence nearly everybody, particularly those who can ill afford it, has become dissatisfied with the style of living that prevailed a few years ago, and, in keeping pace with the new, have been largely responsible for the high range of prices for practically every article useful or needful for human existence. Of course war time demand and the spread of profiteers have influenced the upward trend to a very considerable degree, but the willingness of most people to pay any price demanded, rather than be content with medium or lower grades of articles, has served, more than anything else, to maintain the scale of prices at a high level.

That there is necessity for getting away from the excessive costs of living none will deny. How it may be done is the subject of much study and investigation and many suggestions have been offered in solution of the problem. To assist in bringing it about will require that individual luxuries themselves determine to curb

The Thinker "How Can I Capitalize the Disappointment of My Enemies?"

the extravagance of their tastes, as the Harrisburg Telegraph very aptly observes in the following:

Let us go back to the simpler ways of living we knew 20 or 25 years ago and we shall find ourselves in a moment of much of the high cost of living concerning which everybody is so vigorously complaining.

Who ever heard of ten dollar silk shirts in these days, or silk stockings except on the most festive occasions?
What man in those times invested ten or fifteen dollars in a Panama hat or wore two dollar neckties? Who ever heard of a man in a balance and undergar at four and six dollars a garment?

Only a few of the very rich paid these prices for their clothing in the old days, but the more extravagantly priced garments are regarded now as none too good for everyday wear. A Harrisburg haberdasher said the other day: "Yes, we sell more high priced shirts than ever. Young working men buy ten dollar shirts and think nothing of it. We can scarcely find a market for the cheaper grades of stockings.
The only people who are dressing seemingly are the older working men and the business men who do not believe in spending money foolishly. We have little call for cheap garments."

There lies the trouble—extravagance.
If we were content to go back to the cheaper grades of shirtings, to hats like our fathers wore, to cotton hose and the simplest of undergarments our pay envelope would go farther and prices inevitably will drop. One cannot blame merchants for charging high prices when patrons insist on buying only high priced goods. Let us go back to the simpler tastes and we shall all be happier and our pocketbooks will be heavier. There never was a time when clothes made the man and he who dresses above his income is not only laying up trouble for himself from a financial standpoint, but makes himself ridiculous in the eyes of his fellows. The clerk or the apprentice in a ten dollar shirt makes himself only a laughing stock for wiser folk, but he is a tragedy in economy.

Thoughtful consideration of the matter ought to convince most people that they have had quite as much, if not more, responsibility for the existing scale of prices as the merchant and manufacturers who have been supplying the class and grade of articles customers evince a desire to buy and for which they are apparently willing to pay almost any price.

We have been paying too high for the satisfaction of living high.

Many husbands, if honest, will admit that their wives are the best teachers they ever had. Why should school boards permit such talent to be kept under a bushel when there is need of it in the schools?

The greatest surprise of the war,
next to the quick action of Third Assistant Secretary Keppel in removing the causes of complaint enumerated by soldiers in letters published in The Courier, is the admission of the chief of staff that brutalities in the treatment of prisoners actually occurred.

People who are accustomed to "seeing things" and E. Frank Smith's features in almost every stranger they chance to meet.

The Senate Banking committee did not seem to be able to choke off the evidence. Attorney Jones has offered to substantiate his charges against Comptroller Williams.

When those 1,000-foot liners are ready for service we ought to be able to deport our undesirable aliens at somewhat more rapid rate, providing the Department of Justice has the courage to keep its promise of getting rid of them by the wholesale.

Friday has no superstitions for the housewives who patronized the curb market this morning. Any day that provides means of reducing the cost of living ever so little is a good day.

In his efforts to secure confirmation of his appointment as attorney general,
A. Mitchell Palmer has his nemesis in who charges improper administration in his former capacity as alien property custodian. Which will enable A.
Mitchell to expel him with John Skellon Williams, controller of the currency, who has the redoubtable
A. E. Jones of Fayette camped on his confidential trail.

Will the War Department "get" the "higher up" officers who were responsible for the brutality to soldiers in the prison camps in France? To this question every soldier and civilian as well, has the right to demand answer.

President Wilson will no doubt admit the Senate has every right to discuss the treaty and league of nations
"at the same time" it makes inquiry about the treaty of alliance with France which he seemed to think could be turned over to the ratifying body at any old time.

The profiteers who have cornered the sugar market evidently had a straight tip on the size of the berry crop.

THREE MEN'S.

I'd like to steal a day and be
all alone with little me,
Little me that used to run
Everywhere in search of fun,
Little me of long ago
Who was glad and didn't know
Life was freighted down with care
For the backs of men to bear.
Little me that thought a smile
Ought to linger all the while
On his mother's pretty face
And a tear should never trace
Lines of sorrow, hurt or care
On these cheeks so wondrous fair.

I should like to sit alone
With the me now older grown,
Like to lead the little me
Through the meadows where the hills
And was certain that in time
To the topmost heights I'd climb;
To behold a shining goal
And imagined he could gain
Glory without grief or pain
You'd not care to see of now
Yod could laugh to think how bold
We had been in days of old
And how blind we were to care
With its heartache and despair,
We could smile away the tears
And the pain of later years.

MOUNT PLEASANT PEOPLE URGED TO KEEP WAR STAMPS

Government Needs Money as Much Now as During the War.

POSTAL SAVINGS INCREASE

Net Boost of $27,000 During 1913, Making Total of $173,000; Firemen Called to Tracer to Help Fight $50,000 Fire at Adam Simon Hotel; Notes.

Special to The Courier
MOUNT PLEASANT July 25.—Acting Postmaster Albert C. Queer is urging all persons who have war savings stamps, unless they need the money to allow the government the use of it. Mr. Queer has stated that it is the privilege of the individual to draw his war savings stamp money out if desired but that it is just as patriotic to allow the government the use of this money now as it was during the war.

The war savings stamp sale shows a marked increase since the first of the year but is not as heavy as last year. For the convenience of persons wishing to take $100 out in war savings stamps there will be ready at the postoffice in a short time war savings stamps in $100 bonds. They will bear the same rate of interest as the registered same as stamps and will be much easier to handle.

Considering that almost all of the postal savings depositors are foreigners it is wonderful to think that the postal savings deposits have made a net increase since the first of the year of $27,000 and now totals over $173,000.

INDIGESTION Caused by Acid-Stomach

Millions of people—in fact about 8 out of 10—suffer more or less from indigestion, acute or chronic. Nearly every case is caused by Acid-Stomach.

There are other stomach disorders which they are sure signs of Acid-Stomach—such as heartburn, bloating, food re- peating, sour, gassy stomach. There are many ailments which while they do not cause much distress in the stomach itself are nevertheless low traceable to an acid stomach. Among these are nervousness, biliousness, dizziness, of the liver, rheumatism, impoverished blood, weakness, insomnia, melancholia and a con- train of physical and mental miseries that keep the victim in miserable health year after year.

The right thing to do is to attack these ailments at their source—get rid of the acid stomach. A wonderful modern remedy called EATONIC now makes it easy to do this.

One of our friends writes: "I have been troubled with indigestion for about nine years and have spent quite a sum for medicine, but without relief. After using EATONIC for a few days the gas and pain in my bowels disappeared. EATONIC is just the remedy I needed."

We have thousands of letters telling of these marvelous benefits. Try EATONIC and you will be first as enthusiastic in its praise.

Your druggist has EATONIC. Get a big 50c box from him. He will refund your money if you are not satisfied.

FORTY MILLIONS FOR AIR SERVICE

URGENT GRANTS ENOUGH TO KEEP UP EQUIPMENT AND RECRUIT PERSONNEL

NOT ALL THE AIRMEN ASKED

Fast Sum Was Needed to Put Aircraft Manufacturing Industry on Production Basis, but America Was Ready When Armistice Came.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—Congress has appropriated $40,000,000 through the army supply bill for the use of the air service. This is not as much money as the airmen asked, but it will enable the service to keep up its equipment and fairly strong personnel, and will enable the United States probably to have airplanes enough for an ordinary emergency.

People have been wondering what became of all the money that was voted for the air service in war time. It seems likely that some of it was wasted, but there has been perhaps too proper appreciation of the enormous cost which the government had to stand in order to get the great aircraft manufacturing industry started on the basis of production that seemingly was necessary.

Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, who is in charge of aviation operations in the war department, was in command of the American aviation service in the St. Mihiel drive. He has just testified that when the drive was started more airplanes were concentrated in the immediate vicinity than ever had been brought together within a like area since the war began. During the drive 1,500 planes were sent into action.

General Mitchell was the first American officer to fly over the Hun line.

It is said to be necessary that the airplane service of the United States should be reconstructed. As General Mitchell put it:

"The personnel which has been trained as a result of this war is largely scattered throughout the country. We have a wonderful body of personnel returning from Europe, but they had to go home. A great majority of them would not stay in the service because it looked like a hopeless future for them. As a result of this war, the air service of the United States is in a state of emergency."

It is pretty generally agreed that when the armistice was signed the United States, so far as its forces were concerned, was just getting ready "to do business" on a proper scale. It is true that the St. Mihiel drive took place two months before the armistice went into effect, but the concentration of flyers at that place left some other places without proper personnel and equipment. Not many planes were lost in the St. Mihiel engagement. Later in the Argonne the losses were heavy, but no heavier and perhaps not as heavy as it was expected would be the case in hard engagements of that kind. Of the 1,500 machines at St. Mihiel 530 were American and operated by Americans.

It is understood that the airplane service of the United States with the Army of Occupation was on a basis of efficiency, one that would have enabled the Americans to conduct operations in Germany, if they had been necessary, on a proper scale so far as the air service was concerned.

Along the Mexican border today there is a considerable number of airplanes, but not enough, it is understood, to meet even the minor warfare which it is possible, may have to be conducted there within the near future. With its $40,000,000 it is probable the air service of the United States can be put on a strong peace basis with sufficient additional strength to meet any small war in which this country may be compelled to engage.

"Archies" Seldom Hit Planes.

While on the western front in 1915 and again in 1918 I witnessed considerable air action. The thing which as early as 1915 was the most striking feature of air service was the seeming impossibility, or almost impossibility, of destroying an airplane by fire from the ground. Another striking thing was the apparent inability of the bombers in the airplanes to hit any specific object on the ground at which they were aiming.

Toward the end of the war the bombers were getting more accurate, but there was little change in the situation so far as it affected the accuracy of fire of the anti-aircraft gunners.

Both in 1915 and in 1918 I saw airplanes go on their way unscathed while ground guns were breaking a perfect thunderstorm of shells about them. North of St. Mihiel in late September, 1915, I saw three American airplanes go over the German lines close together. They were shrouded in the smoke of high explosives, and shrapnel shells were bursting all about them. For full twenty minutes the three planes maneuvered over the enemy, the operators apparently serenely unconscious of the fact that they were the objects of the killing intentions of the German below. How they could escape destruction was a puzzle to the onlooker, but airplanes which the shells begin breaking too close to them have a habit of mounting or dropping which instantly destroys the range sense of the anti-aircraft men who are trying to bring them down. It is largely to this they owe their safety.

OLD SWIMMIN' HOLE AT DUNBAR POPULAR WITH THE MERMAIDS

"Picturesque Bathing Suits Well Worth Study," Writes Courier's Correspondent.

Special to The Courier.

DUNBAR, July 25.—Last evening the Suffrage Swimming club of Pechin took possession of the "old swimmin' hole" at P. R. R. bridge No. 28, and for two full hours held the attention of a large audience by their capers in the water. They were like mermaids splashing about and in their picturesque bathing suits made a picture worth study.

The blackberry patches display a lively scene these days. Hundreds are supplying their berry needs daily, and the crop is just beginning to ripen. Memories of the past, when dressers were picked and fringed by the friendly berry bushes have made the ladies and girls more wise, and the feminine berry pickers are today wearing bloomers and, in some cases, men's apparel and are thus able to get through the thickets much better. Berries are commanding 25 cents a quart at present, but by next week, when they begin to ripen more rapidly, the price is expected to become lower. Some complaint is heard of persons residing in mountain sections where they are many berries driving out the pickers, though not using the berries themselves but allowing them to remain on the bushes until they drop off or dry up. But there are not many so mean.

Mrs. Thomas Kelly of Pechin has made for herself quite a record as a sprinter, although to look at her one would think she could hardly develop great speed. It happened thus: The other Sunday the families of C. W. Baker and Thomas Kelly, accompanied by Arthur Dolan, a recently returned soldier, spent the day in the mountains near Center furnace. During their absence, Mardo Kelly and James Bricker got home from overseas all unexpected to their families. Finding his parents in the mountains, young Kelly spent the day with the family of S. H. Gillespie of Pechin, going back to his own home in the evening. When the company got home from the mountains Mrs. Kelly heard of her son's return, and to the surprise of all disappeared over the field toward her home with a speed that would have done credit to a jackrabbit on a Nebraska prairie. The others started to follow her but could not maintain the pace.

Mrs. H. L. McCoy of Swisvale is spending a few weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Boyer of Water street. Mrs. McCoy was formerly Miss Carrie Boyer, a popular Dunbar lassie, always coy, but the wedding ceremony put the Mo to it.

Miss Lulu McGee of Cleveland, O., arrived in Dunbar last week to visit with R. J. McGee and other relatives for some time, but she had hardly arrived when she was notified of the sudden serious illness of her niece, Miss Elizabeth McGee of Brilliant, O., and at once departed for her bedside. Her niece is improving, and Miss Lulu may later make her Dunbar visit.

Postmaster and Mrs. R. J. McGee and daughter, Miss Helen, arrived home from Atlantic City last Saturday evening. Mr. McGee having spent his vacation at the fashionable resort. They had a most delightful time and enjoyed the bathing very much, but the nature study afforded by the girl bathers was even more interesting than the inviting waters of the Atlantic. During their stay they made use of their son's car—he having a cottage in Atlantic City—to make side trips. They know more about New Jersey than they formerly did, having enjoyed its famous sweet potatoes fresh from the vines, eaten its melons in their original sweetness, and met its far-famed mosquitoes personally. They returned home via Washington, D. C., and spent a few days there. Postmaster McGee expected to secure a number of fifty pictures while at the bathing resort, but the first one he snapped broke the lens of the camera and left him powerless.

F. J. McFarland and boys are spending a week in West Virginia on a fishing trip.

Sergeant J. V. Connell, son of P. J. Connell of this place, has arrived from overseas and expects to be home shortly. Daniel Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pierce Baker, and James Robert Harper, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Harper, have arrived home from France, honorably discharged.

David S. Gilmore, an old Dunbar boy who has been absent from the town for a number of years, was transacting business in Dunbar last week. Mr. Gilmore formerly lived in West Virginia, but is now located in Greensburg. He lost his son, Charles Andrew Gilmore, his youngest or "his baby," as he put it, in France, and was here having Squire J. R. Foltz look after the insurance due him for the death of his son.

John Flydell, who has been working on the roads for Supervisor Hardy for some time, has secured a position with the H. C. Frick Coke Company at Leisening.

John A. Lehman has accepted a position with C. V. Hardy on the new road being constructed, and will do concreting. Mr. Lehman is a hustler, and has the biggest appetite of any man on the road. He eats only six "pieces" a day, and carries a dinner pail almost as large as a coal buggy.

Wash Provance of Keifers, is marketing a fine lot of early peaches picked from his own trees. He is getting a fine price, but his patrons are satisfied with the product.

Michael W. Miller of Pechin, left Wednesday morning for Tiffin, O., with his four orphan grandchildren whom he will leave in the Dr. O. U. A. M. children's home to be cared for and educated. Their mother died two years ago, and their father, a son of Mr. Miller, brought the children to his parents' home and they have had them ever since. The flu epidemic last winter took the life of their father, and he being a Junior, that order is looking after the welfare of the orphan children persuaded their grandparents to put them in the home. Reluctant to part with them at first, they considered that the welfare of the children should outweigh their desire to retain them, so they have gone. If Mr. Miller can get suitable work in Tiffin he will move his family to that city in order to be near the little ones.

This well known resident of Greensburg, Pa., makes a statement here which a host of sufferers from the after effects should promptly profit by. This is what he said a few days ago to Greensburg's Nerv-Worth drug-gist:

H. J. Weightman—I had a very severe attack of the "flu." It left me in a very nervous and weakened condition and I did not seem to be making any progress in regaining my nerve force and strength, until I took Nerv-Worth. Its use placed me on the way to recovery and I am gaining every day. I want to recommend it to others in the same condition.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieves the Ailments of Change of Life.

"During Change of Life I had hot flashes, dizzy spells and every month I was laid up with misery. I had constant dull pain, and would always feel tired. I suffered in this way for five or six years and was treated by a physician and took different remedies without benefit. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me and I took it, and I believe I would never have been well if it had not been for the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I am recommending your medicine to all women ailing as I was, for I think it will carry them safely through the Change of Life, and relieve the ailments that come at that period."—Mrs. ALICE C. NANGLE, Galatia, Ill.

Women who suffer from nervousness, "heat flashes," backache, headaches, and "the blues," should try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and if complications exist write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their 40 years' experience in such cases is at your service.

GOOD WAGES PROMISED

Upbuilding Firm Starts Service Men
in at From 46 to 58 Cents an Hour;
Untrained Men Said to Be More Ambitious Since the War.

A distinct step forward in the work of securing employment for discharged soldiers and sailors has been taken, Colonel Arthur Woods, assistant to the secretary of war, has made public the first list of great manufacturing concerns throughout the country willing to take discharged soldiers who heretofore have been unskilled men, and train them in special trades, paying them good wages while at work learning something better.

The Merchant Shipbuilding Corporation, at Harrison, Pa., has written the following letter to Colonel Woods, as a sample of what is now offered the returned fighting men, in which 300 ambitious young ex-service men are called for, who are willing to begin work at from 46 to 58 cents an hour:

"I have your letter of July 2d addressed to the Merchant Shipbuilding Corporation, regarding our taking soldiers and sailors who are in need of special training, to fit themselves for skilled work. In reply I wish to say that we have been doing this very thing on an extensive scale since early in the winter, and have taken on in addition to our own employees hundreds of ex-service men, who are aptly being trained and promoted to higher positions. We can use a large number in addition to these which we now have, and would be very glad to have you direct to us two or three hundred husky, ambitious ex-service men who weigh at least 110 pounds, and who are willing to start work at from 46 to 58 cents per hour.

"We have found," said Colonel Woods, "that skilled men are comparatively easy to place, but that the difficult problem has been to secure satisfactory positions for unskilled men. This large class of ex-service men, because of their army experience and training, are much more ambitious than they were before they entered the war, but lack in many cases the skill in order to hold places as expert and skilled workers. A large number of America's leading industrial plants have already established industrial training classes and vocational schools through which it is possible for men of this type to become skilled workers on the job, while receiving wages that will support him. A considerable amount of work was done by the United States Training Service under the Department of Labor during the war to aid in the establishment of such training classes in plants, but on July 1 this service was discontinued. A great many plants, however, realizing the importance and value of such training classes, are continuing the work, and many are ready to do so."

Colonel Woods' office has made the first list of concerns, which have work for discharged service men, and will give vocational training along with employment, so that eventually the men can work into better pay. In case a better job is waiting for the men in the same plant as soon as they complete their training.

The demand for skilled labor is now so great that such firms are glad to give the training in order to get better men.

JOSH DEVORE IS NO VETERAN

Has Played in Four World's Series
With New York, Boston and Pittsburgh—31 Years Old.

Many baseball fans speak of Josh Devore, Indian outfielder, as an old veteran. Josh is a veteran in baseball, and he has a record of having played in four world's series with New York, Boston and Pittsburgh, but he is not an "old" veteran. He is only thirty-one years old.

Josh Devore, Indian outfielder, is an old veteran in baseball, and he has a record of having played in four world's series with New York, Boston and Pittsburgh, but he is not an "old" veteran. He is only thirty-one years old.

one years old, as shown by the official league book, which yearly prints his record from the time he broke into baseball in the Cotton States league in 1906.

Devore shows earmarks of making a great comeback. His play is steady again, he is a good fielder, a good base runner and he has been knocking the stitches out of the old apple since he joined the Indians. Josh was married last winter, and his more settled habits since that time appear to have given him new life.

REGRET PASSING OF CRUISE

St. Louis Fans Sorry to See Outfielder
Go to Boston—Had Sprung
Charley Horse.

Many St. Louis fans will regret the passing of Walter Cruise from the Cardinals to Boston as Wally has played great ball from time to time, especially in 1917, when he led the league in hitting for several months.

Miller Huggins picked up Cruise in the spring of 1914, while the Cardinals were training in Jacksonville, Fla. Wally was with the Jacksonville club at that time and made such an impression on Hugg that he brought the outfielder home with him. Wally failed to stick, Huggins sending him to St. Paul. Cruise made good there and was recalled. He sprang a Charley horse this spring and has not been at his best.

Brooklyn has been using Ray Schmandt, a natural born first baseman, on third and he has been getting away with it, just as he did at second base.

Tom Clark is not depending altogether on veterans for his Columbia team. He has two college boys in Dick Barrus and Red Johnson who look good.

HOW SISLER LEARNED TO PLAY INITIAL BAG

"Pitching came natural to me; hitting, too; but I was positive that first base would not be so easy. I didn't ask many questions; simply watched the other fellows in the league. I thought if I could catch them with one hand like Studly Melvins I'd be satisfied. I saw how Walter Pipp shifted his feet and stretched for yards, and I saw how Chie Gamit went in the dirt for the low throws. Melvins, Pipp and Gamit taught me how to play first base. I set out to do it and used them for my teachers."

Pretty and Practical Bathing Suits

We are apt to think that things practical, in any kind of apparel, are sure to be commonplace and unattractive and that things pretty are likely to be impractical. But the designers of bathing suits have finally succeeded in turning out beach clothes that are both practical and pretty. After a lot of experimenting with fabrics and styles they have furnished the bathers of this season good looking and comfortable clothes, "from the crown of their heads to the soles of their feet." Every item in the bather's outfit has been carefully thought out. Capes to wear to and from the beach prove the most acceptable of garments, for they are made of cloths that water does not damage, as Turkish toweling, jersey cloth, rubberized cloths and certain silks. Caps to match in color are cleverly draped so as to be not unbecoming and are made of rubber and trimmed with rubber ornaments and flowers. With a cape that has not been in the water and a cap that refuses to be wet, one can return from a swim and walk even city streets homeward, conscious of being presentable.

In the picture of two bathing suits shown here, one is of taffeta silk and the other of black wool jersey with white stripes in the collar and short sleeves, and around the bottom of the knickerbockers and skirt. The cape is of rose-colored bath toweling, and the cap of rubber matches it in color and is trimmed with little rubber flowers. Black silk stockings and cloth shoes complete as satisfactory a suit as the season has produced. The other suit is of blue taffeta, the full knickerbockers gathered on an elastic cord above the knees. It has a short, slit skirt and a long-waisted bodice, also short sleeves formed by a small bounce of taffeta. The stockings match the suit in color, but the shoes are black and high at the back, lacing with white cord or tape across the front.

Julius Bottomley

Lingerie Hats of Chantilly.

Lingerie hats made of black chantilly lace and modeled after the bonnets worn by the peasants of Lorraine are quite a feature in the hats for advanced summer wear. The most effective of these models are made with low full tulle crowns gathered into a medium high head band in mob cap style. To the band are attached two or three full gathered ruffles of different widths of black chantilly lace.

Net Dress Needed.

No summer wardrobe is complete without at least one net dress, because they are delightfully cool and comfortable for hot afternoons or evenings. A simple and becoming little affair is a frock of white net and voile combined, trimmed with a bit of embroidery done in heavy white cotton threads and girdled with a corded net sash.

Wedding Gowns of Satin.
The most distinguished of wedding gowns are of duchesse satin, very plain with lace veil forming the only ornament.

Nicotel
STOPS TOBACCO HABIT

Dr. Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital, who uses Nicotel in his practice, says "The terrible craving for tobacco in any form may be quickly overcome by the simple use of Nicotel. It is not a substitute, it is absolutely harmless in every way and contains no habit forming drugs. The tobacco user does not quit the habit, but the habit quits him—the desire for tobacco vanishes and the victim is released from the slavery of nicotine without effort or inconvenience on his part." Read Dr. Connor's full statement soon to appear in this paper.

Note—Nicotel Tablets are sold in this city under an iron-clad money-back guarantee by all up-to-date druggists, including J. C. Moore—Adv.

UNCLE SAM GETS GOOD JOBS FOR HIS SOLDIERS

Many Agencies at Work to Place Service Men.

SEEKING SOMETHING BETTER

Government Anxious to Make Best
Use of the 4,000,000 Men Who Have, or Should Have Increased Their Earning Capacity Because of the Training They Have Undergone
During the War—Business Interests Helping.

By EDWARD L. BERNAYS.

(In the New York Times)

Every man that the government took into the ranks of the army or navy was taken out of civil employment.

Every man that the army or navy releases from war service the government wants to see satisfactorily employed in his old job or in a better new job before it considers that man's discharge from war service complete.

Col Arthur Woods, assistant to the secretary of war, who is correlating and utilizing all agencies for the employment of ex-service men, has at his command 24,000 field representatives. They are stationed at re-employment centers throughout the country helping in the specific work of in-particular bureaus under their care and keeping the central management aware of local needs and local opportunities. There are men, too, who travel from post to post, with the purpose of expediting matters and further uniting the work. Not only are the ordinary employment channels of the United States employment service used; practically every government department has added re-employment work to its ordinary duties. Secretary of the Interior Lane has placed 15,000 field representatives at the disposal of Colonel Woods. The department of agriculture has instructed its entire force to assist in the work of connecting the soldierless job with the jobless soldier.

Various Agencies at Work.

Every Red Cross employment bureau, every Salvation Army, Y. M. C.
A., Knights of Columbus, Jewish Welfare board, war camp community service, army and navy commission on training camp activities, American Library association, governors of all states, mayors of the principal cities, department of the interior, with 15,000 field representatives; department of agriculture, with 24,000 field representatives; post office department, labor department, navy department,
United States chamber of commerce, chambers of commerce of the principal cities, National Association of Manufacturers, Merchants' association, principal labor organizations, and a host of other established volunteer agencies are now working with and for the government for the re-employment of ex-soldiers.

The first step taken toward giving employment to the ex-soldier is made before the man is dismissed from the service.

Booklets have been printed and are issued to the man while he is on board ship from France to America. This literature, issued by Colonel Woods' office, acquaints him with the economic situation that he will meet when he returns home. It tells him exactly how to go about getting a job. It points out the trades and professions which are open to him. Hundreds and hundreds of them, of all kinds. It removes all doubts a man may have as to his ability to begin life under favorable circumstances.

Race, man is asked to fill an employment card. This questionnaire, far simpler than the one which took him from civil life, is designed to put him back in a civil life without red tape.

Every card that is filled by returning men is immediately forwarded as a part of preliminary application blank to the bureau Red Cross, Knights of Columbus or any of the other volunteer agencies under government supervision which is located in the part of the country in which the soldier lives.

Case of John Brown.

So that when John Brown, who describes himself as a resident of Chicago age twenty-six with a previous training as a buxster, expresses a desire to become a machinist his card is entered, and all efforts are made to get choice of jobs for him upon his personal application at his nearest re-employment bureau.

If a man is indifferent to the sort of job he gets his re-employment bureau will send him to any number of them until he finds what he thinks he will like. Or it will let him talk to a trained vocational guide, who may be able to discover in him a vocational preference.

These bureaus may help the man in material ways. The soldier who decided to have a vacation of a few weeks on his $60 before starting to work may soon find himself without funds. The Salvation Army will see to it that he has food until his employment agency finds him a job. Or he may spend all his $60 on a suit of civilian clothes. He belongs to the government until he has gone back to work. And the government is waiting to be asked to help him.

Jobs to Fit.

A man may not like his old job.
Colonel Woods' office will try to find a new job for him that he will like better. It can in certain cases help him to learn a new trade. It will place him out as a well paid apprentice. Or it will show him how to learn new things—direct him to evening courses, to day courses, and give him work so that he can earn his keep while he is learning a new trade.

If a man finds that his old job does not want him the government agent or the local employment agent looks into the matter finds out what the trouble is and settles it if possible.

According to recent scientific dis-

May Mean War on Rats.

There is not enough leather to go around. Fish skins are susceptible to tanning and there are rat skins which make good leather large enough for many purposes. They would do for some kinds of gloves and mittens say the Little Journal. They may be sewed together to make cloaks and other garments and they are not too small to be available for hats of boots and shoes.
The general rule as to leather is that the thicker the fur is the poorer the hide and vice versa. According to this rule hide would produce superior leather.

Industry United on Plan to Stabilize

ONE-PRICE PLAN FOR SEASON

Problem of Adjustment Put Up to Industry.

THAT the solution to the problem of adjusting business conditions to the conditions of the industry, their must undertake is reflected in the avalanche of replies received to a letter recently sent out by the Lakewood Engineering Company, Cleveland, a reproduction of a few of which are shown herewith.

Believing that price is a most potent factor, this company announced its decision to make price periods of not less than six months, with a view of bringing about a common understanding between the producer or manufacturer and his consumer, and a definite establishment of confidence between the two.

New Price Revolution.

Irving Fisher, professor of political economy of Yale University, has written an article which was presented to the government and mayors' conference at the White House in Washington, in which he said, "Business men should face the facts. To talk reverently of 1915-1916 prices is to speak a dead language today. The buyers of the country, since the armistice, have made an unexampled attack upon prices through their wailing attitude and yet price recessions have been insignificant."

It is interesting to observe that many manufacturers think that prices must come down, including the price of labor, but they are ready to demonstrate to you that their own prices cannot come down, nor can they pay lower wages. Almost everything they buy somehow costs twice as much as before the war and their labor is twice as dear. They cannot pay their labor for labor to meet the increased cost of living. As a matter of fact when we investigate any individual one of the so-called high prices we are likely to find that the individual price is not high, that it is not high relative to the rest. Everyone seems to have lost the sense of values.

In the review of history conditions before and subsequent to war, there is not one instance where prices have receded to a pre-war level. The devastations of this war have affected the United States less industrially than any other nation participating. Tremendous demands created by the war have expanded production with consequent increased wages to such a point that in a period of four years they are practically doubled.

The average increase of building materials in the same period has been but 68 per cent. The recession in building material prices during the last four months has almost been invisible.

Product Prices Higher.

A short time ago a farmer asked a buggy manufacturer for a price on a certain type of vehicle. Upon receipt of the quotation the farmer wrote the manufacturer asking him of "production" and "standard high commercial crimes and misdemeanors. In justification of his charges he reminded the manufacturer that he (the farmer) had once bought a very similar buggy from same factory at a price far below price now quoted. The manufacturer operated one of those

a record of all its transactions. Upon receipt of the farmer's complaint the manufacturer looked up the previous

"LET'S GO"

If every person who reads this article will take up the slogan "LET'S GO," put it across and get everybody thinking, doing and going, everybody acting without waiting for someone else, nothing can stop America. No person, no business, no nation ever got anywhere by waiting on someone else. The successful one is the one who does.

for your old one, we will ship the buggy, and in addition will ship you a piece of household furniture and a kitchen stove."

It is a fact that the products of the farm can today be exchanged for between 15 and 30 per cent. more of manufactured articles than ever before.

In the face of prosperous conditions obtaining in the retail stores of the country, the situation is somewhat difficult to analyze. On the other hand, these merchants are not replenishing their supplies, manufacturers are not buying their raw materials, foreign buyers in this country are holding back the orders which they came to place, awaiting a settlement of conditions, in the belief that there may be some recession in prices.

Action Necessary.

The only economic solution for the problem of unemployment, the only way to obviate further unemployment is to overcome the present inertia by bringing into activity the enormous potential buying power, which we all know exists.

Judging from replies to the suggested "one price for the season plan," industry itself intends to overcome this inertia. The replies come from every conceivable industry and from every state in the Union and they were 99.4 in favor of doing for themselves without waiting for someone else to set the pace.

It is the purpose of the National Prosperity Campaign, an organization with its headquarters at the Commodore Hotel in New York, supported by members of industries, to further this spirit through the trade and business press of the country.

The only way for business to have people know what is good for business is to take the people into its confidence and get them thinking and acting on these things which are good for business on the theory and good sense that whatever is good for business is good for the people as a whole and that whatever is good for the people is also good for business.

DEMAND FOR SPOT AND PROMPT FOUNDRY COKE IS VERY HEAVY

Spot Furnace Not So Active. Production is Going Out on Contracts.

MAKERS OUT OF MARKET

Considerable Effort Required to Induce Them to Make Flat Price Quotations; More Fair Prices to Resume Next Month; Coal Buyers Act Slow.

Special to The Weekly Courier.

PITTSBURGH, July 23.—There is a considerable shortage of free furnace coke in existence, but producers are making no effort to force it on the market, their asking price being strictly maintained at $4.00. There is little demand for spot coke and if the coke is not purchased it will be applied on contracts, current production being regulated accordingly.

Demand for spot and prompt foundry coke, on the other hand, is very heavy. The brokers are doing a good business, while several operators who sell their coke direct are not offering coke openly, though they are filling the demands of their regular customers. There are few "fair" prices for foundry coke for spot or prompt shipment, depending on grade and brand, $4.75, $5.00, $5.25, and $5.50. Not much is being done at the $4.75 price, as supplies of such coke are limited, and there are not many consumers who do not want a coke of better grade. Of the coke sold at $4.75 a large proportion would average very fair, but it is not certain that every carload would grade up to the average. There are rather heavy sales of one brand that is priced at $5.00, no more, no less, and there is also a considerable movement in $5.50 coke. The average of the week's turnover in spot and prompt foundry coke is probably about $5.20.

Sharpville furnace will blow in August 10 and a contract for the coke, to the end of the year, was closed yesterday, the price being understood to be between $4.25 and $4.35. Flat price contracts hitherto made have ranged from $4.25 to $4.50. The great majority of coke producers are out of the market entirely at flat prices and it requires much negotiating to secure any quotation at all at a flat price. Alice furnace, at Sharpville, is to blow in about August 15, but its coke is provided, as there was a contract made during the government control and covering the whole year 1919.

While flat price contracts have been made for the half year at $4.25 to $4.50, and none at either higher or lower prices, the contract market cannot be quoted at that range since it is far from certain that even $4.50 could be done now. The actual value of coke as shipped ranges from $4.00 to $5.00, for there are deliveries of prompt and July coke at $4.00, also $4.00 deliveries on a contract made at $4.00 for July and $4.40 for the remainder of the year; deliveries on flat price contracts at from $4.25 to $4.50, and deliveries on contracts made long ago and providing for "flat government price" of $5.00, such contracts having been adjusted to $5.00 as a concession to keep the furnaces in operation.

It should be noted in this connection that such contracts have not been "revised" to $5.00, the arrangement being that of a concession that can be withdrawn and which presumably will be withdrawn in case the open market advances above $5.00. Should the predicted coal scarcity develop prompt furnace coke may easily be selling at above $6.00 before the end of the year, for coke of course will sell at the market value of the coal plus the cost of coking. This means one and one-half times the value of a ton of coal plus 50 to 75 cents the shipping value of furnace coke may be named as ranging from $4.00 to $5.00 while market prices may be quoted as follows:

Prompt furnace $4.00
Prompt foundry $4.25 to $5.50
Contract foundry $5.00 to $5.50

The above range on contract foundry is based on contracts made in the past few weeks and now in force but it is far from certain that additional contracts could be made at $5.00.

The Pittsburgh district coal market does not show much snap but producers are still in their views as to early deliveries and will hardly make contracts at any price. They are much disappointed that consumers are not acting upon the clearly defined prospects of a coal shortage next fall and winter, by laying in stocks at present. Some consumers seem to think coal operators hope that there will be a shortage, and this the producers deny, insisting that a shortage, with fancy prices, would be injurious to them. In case of a shortage they would make little from fancy priced sales while their production costs would mount and make their flat price contracts unprofitable.

Pig iron is fairly active in foundry grades, and shows a little activity in Bessemer, while basic is extremely dull. If pig iron of all grades were active there might soon be a definitely advancing market, but demand for foundry iron cannot swing the whole market, it being necessary that basic iron be absorbed freely also, and this cannot occur until the steel industry is operating practically full. At present there is heavy demand for some steel products and light demand for others. The pig iron market, however, is "quite steady" now, regular prices being well maintained. Prices are as follows:

Bessemer $27.95
Basic $28.75
Foundry $28.75
Forge $28.75

These prices are f. o. b. Valley furnace, freight to Pittsburgh being $1.40.

SUGGESTS MINING ONLY COAL ENOUGH FOR OUR OWN NEEDS

Director of Anthracite Bureau, E. W. Parker, Against Over-Development.

TO SAFEGUARD INDUSTRY

Government Restraint to Assure Reserve Supply for Future Generations May be Necessary; Refers to Pre-war Peril of the Coal Industry.

That governmental control may be necessary to prevent another era of over-development such as nearly ruined the bituminous industry in pre-war days, was the statement of Edward W. Parker, director of the anthracite bureau of information at the Cleveland convention of the American Wholesale Coal Association. "Whether it is wise in the long run permanently to supply the fuel needs of foreign countries, was questioned by the speaker, who declared that a sounder economic principle is the utilization of raw materials at home, exporting only the manufactured products, thus giving employment to more labor and adding to the material wealth of the country.

The question of holding coal lands in reserve until the product is needed seems to imply some sort of government control, according to Mr. Parker, and the view of recent experience is likely to be answered in the negative. "Labor should be the last to favor permanent government ownership or control of the coal mines, or any other of our productive, manufacturing, or transportation industries. And yet some of the leaders in the miners' union are advocating the nationalization of the coal mines."

"But we should not return to pre-war conditions and particularly we should not return to conditions that prevailed in the closing decade of the last and the opening decade of the present century, when cutthroat competition, wasteful mining methods and altogether bad practice were the order of the day.

"The bituminous coal mining industry has to guard itself in the future against what has caused so much trouble in the past—the exploitation of new properties when the already developed mines are capable of producing all the necessary tonnage. No excessive amount of capital is required for the development of bituminous coal mines, and it is well known that the newer mines are capable, for a time at least, of producing coal at a lower cost than the old ones, as the expense of the haulage, ventilation and general upkeep are greater in the older mines than the new ones. It is for this reason that some regulation of this evil might be undertaken by the government, through the issuing of license or permit to develop a coal mining property to replace an ex-

haunted operation, or when it can be shown that there is need for the additional output in the trade and not for the purpose of giving the Railroad Administration or the railroads cheaper fuel.

"The frugality exhibited by the railroads in their purchases of coal has been one of the crying evils. If not the crying evil, that has worked for the demoralization of the bituminous coal mining industry, for in order to secure cheaper fuel on their own account, and also probably to secure additional tonnage over their own rails, the transportation interests serving the coal mining regions have consistently encouraged the opening of new properties, notwithstanding the fact that the general market was already over-supplied. But government regulation should end with the issue of the license, and those in charge of the business should be permitted to solve the problem of production and distribution in accordance with trade requirements. They should be permitted to cooperate, through the exchange of information, by restriction of production where necessary, and in all other legitimate manner."

On the basis of the United States Geological Survey's estimate, the present available supply of coal of all grades in the United States is somewhat over 3,500,000,000 tons, of which about two-thirds is easily obtainable, the remainder being of poor quality or accessible only with difficulty or at a high mining cost. Yet all of the easily obtainable coal is not of high quality. Mr. Parker stated, at least 40 per cent of it consisting of sub-bituminous coals and lignite and probably as much more is of medium grade bituminous variety, so that of the seemingly enormous and "inexhaustible" supplies, only a relatively small amount consists of anthracite and of high bituminous and semi-bituminous coals.

Mr. Parker estimated that the present supply of coal will last 2,000 years, the present rate of production, the present rate cannot be taken as basis for predicting the requirements of the future.

The supplies of this country are inexhaustible, the years of our high coal fields are numbered. "As are all aware, the high grades are chiefly to be found in the Eastern border of the Appalachian system, westward, and these coals, on the eastern border of the Appalachians are most available for export. It is probably right and just that the United States should do its best to relieve the necessities of other and Italy, which have resulted the world war, and it is not for a while at least, in order to care of the surplus production of bituminous mines, the building trade with South America is liable.

"There is no doubt that Brazil, and some of other countries of South America, our coal, and we want some of products of these countries, whether it is wise in the long run, however, to supply the fuel needs of foreign countries is open to it, it has never seemed to me, unilaterally wise to export raw materials. A sounder principle is the export of raw materials at home, giving the manufactured products giving employment to more labor adding to the material wealth of a country.

"If we add a foreign trade which while care of the present surplus bituminous coal, the light of past experience teaches that unless some restriction is exercised, only a short period of time will elapse before the opening up of new mines will create an additional surplus taken care of and we would the no better off than we are now.

"Is it the part of wisdom to work for placing of such safeguards all the coal mining industry will restrict the exploitation of new mines, in accordance with necessities, rather than to waste abundance and endanger perhaps future welfare of the nation?"

BOOTH TARKINGTON

Copyright by Doubleday, Page & Company

"You did right!" Fanny said with a vehemence not the less spirited because she suppressed her voice almost to a whisper. "You did exactly right! You're behaving splendidly about the whole thing, and I want to tell you I know your father would thank you if he could see what you're doing."

"My Lord!" George broke out at her. "You make me dizzy! For heaven's sake quit the mysterious detective business—at least do quit it around me! Go and try it on somebody else, if you like; but I don't want to hear it!"

She began to tremble, regarding him with a fixed gaze. "You don't care to hear, then," she said huskily, "that I approve of what you're doing?"

"Certainly not! Since I haven't the faintest idea what you think I'm 'doing,' naturally I don't care whether you approve of it or not. All I'd like, if you please, is to be alone. I'm not giving a tea here, this afternoon, if you'll permit me to mention it!"

Fanny's gaze wavered; she began to blink; then suddenly she sank into a chair and wept silently, but with a terrible desolation.

"Oh, for the Lord's sake!" he moaned. "What in the world is wrong with you?"

"You're always picking on me," she quavered wretchedly, her voice indistinct with the weeping that bubbled in to it from her nose. "You do—you always pick on me! You're always doing it—always—ever since you were a little boy! Whenever anything goes wrong with you, you take it out on me! You do! You always—"

George hung to heaven a gesture of despair; it seemed to him the last straw that Fanny should have chosen this particular time to come and sob in his room over his mistreatment of her!

"Oh, my Lord!" he whispered; then, with a great effort, addressed her in a reasonable tone: "Look here, Aunt Fanny; I don't see what you're making all this fuss about. Of course I know I've teased you sometimes, but—"

"Teased?" she cried, "valled."

"Teased?" she cried, "valled."

"Teased?" she cried, "valled."

"Teased?" she cried, "valled."

"Oh, my Lord!" George groaned. Fanny spread out her small, soaked handkerchief, and shook it in the air to dry it a little, crying as dumpy and as wretchedly during this operation as before—a slight which gave George a curious shock to add to his other agitations, it seemed so strange.

"You're so proud," she quavered, "and so hard! I tell you I didn't mean to speak of it to you, and I never, never in the world would have told you about it, nor have made the faintest reference to it, if I hadn't seen that somebody else had told you, or you'd found out for yourself some way."

In despair of her intelligence, and in some doubt of his own, George struck the palms of his hands together. "Somebody else had told me what? I'd found out for myself!"

"How people are talking about your mother!"

Except for the incidental beariness of her voice, her tone was casual, as though she mentioned a subject previously discussed and understood; for Fanny had no doubt that George had only pretended to be mystified because, in his pride, he would not in words admit that he knew what he knew.

"What did you say?" he asked incredulously.

"Of course I understood what you were doing," Fanny went on, drying her handkerchief again. "It puzzled other people when you began to be rude to Eugene, because they couldn't see how you could treat him as you did when you were so interested in Lucy. But I remembered how you came to me, that other time when there was so much talk about Isabel; and I knew you'd give Lucy up in a minute, if it came to a question of your mother's reputation, because you said then that—"

"Look here," George interrupted in a shaking voice. "Look here, I'd like—"

"He stopped, unable to go on, his agitation was so great. His chest heaved as from hard running; and his complexion, pallid at first, had become mottled; dery spots appearing at his temples and cheeks. "What do you mean by telling me—telling me there's talk about—about—"

He gulped, and began again: "What do you mean by using words as 'reputation'? What do you mean, speaking of a 'question' of my—my mother's reputation?"

Fanny looked up at him woefully over the handkerchief which she now applied to her reddened nose. "God knows I am sorry for you, George," she murmured. "I wanted to say so, but it's only old Fanny, so whatever she says—even when it's sympathy—pick on her for it!" She sobbed. "It's only old Fanny!"

"You look here!" George said harshly. "When I spoke to my Uncle George after that rotten thing I heard Aunt Amelia say about my mother, he said if there was any gossip it was about you! He said people might be laughing about the way you ran after Morgan, but that was all."

Fanny lifted her hands, clenched them and struck them upon her knees. "Yes; it's always Fanny," she sobbed. "It's always Fanny—always, always!"

"You listen!" George said. "After I'd talked to Uncle George I saw you; and you said I had a mean little mind for thinking there might be truth in what Aunt Amelia said about people talking. You denied it. And that wasn't the only time; you'd attacked me before then, because I intimated that Morgan might be coming here too often. You made me believe that mother let him come entirely on your account, and now you say—"

"I think he did," Fanny interrupted desolately. "I think he did come as much to see me as anything—for a while it looked like it. He did act a good deal that way—and if Wilbur hadn't died—"

"You told me there wasn't any talk," Fanny protested. "I didn't know how much there was."

"What?"

"People don't come and tell such things to a person's family, you know. You don't suppose anybody was going to say to George Amberson that his sister was getting herself talked about, do you? Or that they were going to say much to me?"

"You told me," said George, fiercely, "that mother never saw him except when she was chaperoning you."

"They weren't much alone together, then," Fanny returned. "Hardly ever, before Wilbur died. Everybody knew that he'd been engaged to her—"

"What's that?" George cried. "Everybody knows it. Don't you remember your grandfather's story of it at the Sunday dinner one night?"

"He didn't say they were engaged or—"

"Well, they were! Everybody knows it; and she broke it off on account of that serenade when Eugene didn't know what he was doing. He drank when he was a young man, and she wouldn't stand for it, but everybody in this town knows that Isabel has never really cared for any other man in her life! Poor Wilbur! He was the only soul alive that didn't know it!"

Nightmare had descended upon the unfortunate George; he leaned back against the footboard of his bed, gasping wildly at his aunt. "I believe I'm going crazy," he said. "You mean when you told me a falsehood?"

"No!" Fanny gasped.

"I tell you I didn't know how much talk there was, and it wouldn't have amounted to much if Wilbur had lived." And Fanny completed this with a fatal admission: "I didn't want you to interfere."

George overlooked the admission; his mind was not now occupied with analysis. "What do you mean," he asked, when you say that if father had lived, the talk wouldn't have amounted to anything?"

"Things might have been—they might have been different."

"You mean Morgan might have married you?"

Fanny gulped. "No. Because I don't know that I'd have accepted him." She had ceased to weep, and now she sat up stiffly. "I certainly didn't care enough about him to marry him; I wouldn't have let myself care that much until he showed that he wished to marry me. I'm not that sort of person!" The poor lady paid her vanity this pitious little tribute.

"What I mean is, if Wilbur hadn't died people wouldn't have had it proved before their very eyes that what they'd been talking about was true!"

"You say—you say that people believe—"

George shuddered, then forced himself to continue, in a sick voice: "They believe my mother is in love with that man?"

"Of course."

"And because he comes here—and they see her with him driving—and all that—they think they were right when they said she was in love with him before—before my father died?"

She looked at him gravely with her eyes now dry between their reddened lids. "Why, George," she said, gently, "don't you know that's what they say? You must know that everybody in town thinks they're going to be married very soon."

George uttered an incoherent cry; and sections of him appeared to writhe. He was upon the verge of actual nausea.

"You know it!" Fanny cried, getting up. "You don't think I'd have spoken of it to you unless I was sure you knew it!" Her voice was wholly genuine, as it had been throughout the wretched interview. "Somebody must have told you!"

"Who told you?" he said.

"Who told you?" he said.

"Who told you there was talk? Where is this talk? Where does it come from? Who does it?"

"Why, I suppose pretty much everybody," she said. "I know it must be pretty general."

"Who said so?"

"Who said so?"

"George stepped close to her. "You say people don't speak to a person of gossip about that person's family. Well, how did you hear it, then? How did you get hold of it? Answer me!"

"Why—Fanny hesitated.

"You answer me!"

"I hardly think it would be fair to give names."

"Look here," said George. "One of your most intimate friends is that mother of Charlie Johnson's, for instance. Has she ever mentioned this to you? You say everybody is talking. Is she one?"

"She may have intimated—"

"I'm asking you; Has she ever spoken of it to you?"

"She's a very kind, discreet woman,

George; but she may have intimated—

"Do Sit Down," the Hospitable Lady Urged Him.

George had a sudden intuition, as there flickered into his mind the picture of a street-crossing and two absorbed ladies almost run down by a fast horse. "You and she have been talking about it today," he cried. "You were talking about it with her not two hours ago. Do you deny it?"

"Do you deny it?"

"No!"

"All right," said George. "That's enough!"

She caught at his arm as he turned away. "What are you going to do, George?"

"I'll not talk about it now," he said, heavily. "I think you've done a good deal for one day, Aunt Fanny!"

And Fanny, seeing the passion in his face, began to be alarmed. "George, you know I'm sorry for you, whether you care or not," she whispered. "I never in the world would have spoken of it if I hadn't thought you know all about it. I wouldn't have—"

But he had opened the door with his free hand. "Never mind!" he said, and she was obliged to pass out into the hall, the door closing quickly behind her.

CHAPTER XV.

George took off his dressing-gown and put on a collar and tie, his fingers shaking so that he was not his usual success; then he picked up his coat and waistcoat, and left the room while still in process of dressing them, fastening the buttons as he ran down the front stairs to the door. It was not until he reached the middle of the street that he realized that he had forgotten his hat and he paused for an irresolute moment then he decided that he needed no hat for the sort of call he intended to make, and went forward hurriedly. Mrs. Johnson was at home, the Irish girl who came to the door informed him, and he was left to await the lady, in a room like an elegant well—the Johnsons' "reception room."

Mrs. Johnson came in, breathing noticeably, and her round head, smoothly but economically decorated with the hair of an honest woman, seemed to be lingering far in the background of the Alpine bosom which took precedence of the rest of her everywhere; but when she was all in the room, it was to be seen that her breathing was the result of hospitable haste to greet the visitor, and her hand suggested that she had paused for only the briefest ablutions. George accepted this cold, damp limp mechanically.

"Mr. Amberson—I mean Mr. Minafer!" she exclaimed. "I'm really delighted; I understood you asked for me. Mr. Johnson's out of the city, but Charlie's downtown and I'm looking for him at any minute, now, and he'll be so pleased that you—"

"I didn't want to see Charlie," George said. "I want—"

"Do sit down," the hospitable lady urged him, seating herself upon the sofa. "Do sit down."

"No, I thank you. I wish—"

"Surely you're not going to run away again, when you've just come? Do sit down, Mr. Minafer. I hope you'll all well at your house and at the dear old Major's too. He's looking—"

"Mrs. Johnson," George said, in a strained loud voice which arrested her attention immediately, so that she was abruptly silenced, leaving her surprised mouth open. "Mrs. Johnson, I have come to ask you a few questions which I would like you to answer, if you please."

She became grave at once. "Certainly, Mr. Minafer. Anything I can—"

He interrupted sternly, yet his voice shook in spite of its sternness. "You were talking with my Aunt Fanny about my mother this afternoon."

At this Mrs. Johnson uttered an involuntary gasp, but she recovered herself. "Then I'm sure our conversation was a very pleasant one, if we were talking of your mother, because—"

Again he interrupted. "My aunt has told me what the conversation was, and I don't mean to waste any time, Mrs. Johnson. You were talking about a—"

George's shoulders suddenly heaved uncontrollably; but he went on. "You were discussing a scandal that involved my mother's name."

"Mr. Minafer!"

"Isn't that the truth?"

"I don't feel called upon to answer, Mr. Minafer," she said with visible agitation. "I do not consider that you have any right—"

Pies and Tea—The American Y.W.C.A.

In France Is Famous for Both of Them

The foundations of the Y. W. C. A. in France were laid not upon a rock as per Biblical instruction, but upon tea. Wherever it went it got out a tea table, set forth the cups, brewed some tea, found the femons and then passed the sugar.

Hundreds of cups of tea were passed to nurses by directors of the nurses' clubs. The scene in this picture, snapped at Angers, France, has been repeated a thousand afternoons in every corner where the Blue Triangle followed the Stars and Stripes. This nurses' hut is built of red brick. Its rough beam ceiling is covered with pine branches and leaves from the forest outside its doors. It is located on the grounds of what was once an old monastery. But where the quiet brown-clad monks once chanted their prayers, jolly American nurses, in white aprons, red lined capes and jaunty caps, run back and forth from hospital ward to barracks.

And every afternoon they come to the hut for tea.

REGION MOVES ALONG QUIETLY IN PREPARATION FOR FUTURE

No Marked Features But Prospects Are Becoming More Encouraging.

MORE FURNACE ACTIVITY

Brings Additional Frick Ovens Into Operation; Furnace Resumption In August Will Enlarge Merchant Production; No Fear of Labor Shortage.

From The Weekly Courier.

In preparation for larger and better things to come, the Connellsville region is moving along in a quiet and orderly way in the production of both coal and coke, and without marked developments in either branch of the trade other than indications of greater activity in both. There is a better demand and production is gradually growing in volume. There is less free coke than there was a week ago but not sufficient to serve as a price-influencing factor. Shipments on account of contracts are absorbing current production to within a close margin hence a healthy tone is observable in the market. Foundry trade has been greatly stimulated, demand being much heavier, and inquiries more numerous. The "buy early" propaganda is having the effect of increasing orders from consumers of both steam and by-product coal.

The increasing activity at the furnaces of the United States Steel Corporation has made heavier demands upon the H. C. Frick Coke company and to meet it the number of producing ovens and plants of this interest has been further increased. Last week there was a total of 1,746 ovens brought into production after an idleness which extended over the entire early summer. Adelaide, Bagdad, Calumet, Hecla No. 2, Juniata, Kyle and Mutual, all in the Connellsville district, were fired up in part, while additions of from three to 100 ovens were made at 15 plants all, except one, being in the Connellsville district.

The proportion of increased demand upon merchant plants being materially less than upon furnace ovens, the increase in the number of active merchant ovens was only 20, or about one-eighth that at the furnace plants. Marston now has half of its 64 ovens in blast. Donald No. 1 and 2 have 450 out of 492 active. Mount Hope added 50, Royal 35, while small gains were made at Sterling, and Tower Hill Nos. 1 and 2.

With a number of furnaces scheduled to resume during August, coke contracts for which have already been placed or are being negotiated, there will be a very considerable enlargement of merchant production by the middle of the month.

A few plants cut down production during the week through a lay-off of one or two days, but generally a full-time schedule was observed.

The car shortage which first became noticeable in the supply for coal loadings, has extended to coke cars. It has not been of such proportions as to excite concern on the part of shippers, but it does serve to remind them of a former period when insufficient supply was the biggest and most troublesome fly in the ointment.

Operating conditions on the whole are extremely satisfactory. The so-called alarming scarcity of men, present and prospective in the mining industry, which the daily press and some coal and allied trades publications have been "playing up" with great insistence, does not prevail in the coke region and, what is more, it is not expected to develop. The region has passed through some very strenuous periods in its existence but has never yet been unable, for lack of men, to take care of its trade in a satisfactory manner. The coke region has all of Patrick Henry's faith in the experiences of the past as a guide to the future, so does not anticipate the dire conditions the prophets of gloom are predicting will assuredly come to pass.

Production of coke for the week ending Saturday, July 19, is estimated at 164,200 tons, the largest of any single week during the early part of April. The output was supplied by the two districts in the following proportions: Connellsville, 97,800, an increase of 2,492 tons; Lower Connellsville, 66,400, an increase of 2,890 tons, or a total increase of 5,382 tons. The increase was almost wholly at the furnace oven plants, the figures being: Furnace, 95,120, a gain of 6,022 tons; merchant, 71,100, an increase of 360 tons.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Build Up Permanently Nature At Its Best As An Aid.

If you who are weak, nervous and run-down from over-work, worry or any other cause would only realize that the summer months is the time to build up strength and vigor there would not be so many collapses and rushing for aid during the winter.

The plan to follow is simple: plenty of rest and good wholesome food along with a strength-giving, body-building tonic. Chasco-Vin with its Iron, Manganese, Hypophosphites, Nux and other strength-making ingredients, is the tonic we suggest. If you follow this plan carefully you will notice a wonderful improvement in two weeks time. But don't give up too soon.

The local agents for Chasco-Vin are: C. Ray Hietel, Woolworth Bldg., and A. A. Clarke, 223 Pittsburg St.—Adv.

Tax Return Date Extended.

A further extension of the time, to August 15, 1919, for filing returns under the income tax law to partnerships and personal service corporations having a fiscal year ended January 31, February 28, March 31 or April 30, 1919, has been allowed.

COKE TRADE SUMMARY.

The Connellsville region indulges no extravagant expectations of the early future but it is going quietly ahead in the production of both coal and coke with such a regularity and strength of growth that it will be quite able to meet the increased demands of both when they come. To meet the increased need for coke at the plants of the United States Steel Corporation the H. C. Frick Coke company has brought 1,746 more ovens into production. The proportion of increase in demand upon the merchant ovens being materially less than upon furnace ovens were added to the list of that interest. With the furnaces scheduled for resumption early in August, coke requirements of which have been covered or are under negotiation, there will be an enlargement of merchant production within two weeks.

Production made a gain of 6,380 tons last week, 6,020 of which was at furnace ovens, bringing the total up to 164,200 tons, the heaviest since the early part of April.

Demand for coke is better, also for steam and by-product coal, the latter evidencing the effect of the "buy early" propaganda. Current production of coke is being well taken care of on contracts, there being comparatively little free coke left, and not sufficient to affect prices very materially. Producers are holding off from making final price quotations. Foundry displays still greater activity with price stiffening tendencies.

ACTIVE FURNACES IN THE VALLEY NOW NUMBER TWENTY-ONE

Within Four of the Record Reached During War Time When 25 Were Running to Capacity.

Twenty-one blast furnaces are now active in the Mahoning valley proper, says the Youngstown correspondent of the Cleveland Daily Iron Trade. The latest to be relighted is the stack of the A. M. Byers company at Girard, O. The stack has a daily capacity of 400 tons.

The number of furnaces in blast closely approaches that of the war period. The number of stacks going at the time of the signing of the armistice was 25. One of these, the newest stack of the Brier Hill Steel company, came in shortly before the termination of hostilities. During the war, furnaces were out from time to time for relining and for various other reasons.

Nearly all furnaces in the valley are capable of operating for a long period, most of those blown in lately having been relined and otherwise repaired while out of commission during the spring. Of the four furnaces now inactive, at least two are slated to resume operations at an early date.

Since reaching the low water mark of 14 in blast last spring, the number of furnaces resuming operations has increased rapidly. Improvement in business, and the consequent expansion of mill operations have resulted in an increased demand for pig iron. Comparatively little pig iron is being sold here, the bulk being used in mill operations or being held for future use.

Resumption of operations by blast furnaces out in the spring has brought up the number of active furnaces to a total exceeding that of any previous peace period.
